NUMB. 2482

MONDAY, JUNE 6. 1743.

Our last arrived a Mail from France, and another from Flanders.

Petersburgh, May 10.

THE Project for invading Sweden has been executed in such a Manner, as puts us in mind of the Expedition of Peter the Great. It is very apparent, that the Design, tho' in the talk'd of, was form'd long ago. We were amaz'd at the Disposition made of the Forces in Esthonia, Livonia, and Ingria, while very few were march'd into Finland. But we now discern, that the Court had in View, first its own Security at Petersburgh, against the Designs of implacable Malecontents; and next the Ease of the People, and of the Army, by not marching them out of Quarters till they were ready to employ them. If the Swedes had accepted the equitable Proposals of this Court, they had averted the Storm which will now fall upon them from all Quarters. Besides the great Embarkations here and at Cronstot, a Body of Veterans, on board the Revel Squadron, are already at Hango, where the whole Fleet is to rendezvous, in order to proceed to the Coasts of Finland, where the Gallies attending General Keith will join them, with 15,000 Men on board.

Stockholm, May 20. Yesterday Morning arrived Capt. Lathford, Post from Abo, with some Explications of the final Proposals of Russia. These are said to be penn'd by the Command, and in the Presence, of the Czarina, and the Intercession of the Imperial Prince. They are extremely moderate, and conclude (as we are informed by some who have seen them) to this Purpose: 'That as to the Article of Succession, the Czarina presses it from Three Motives; viz. I. Because she thinks a Peace cannot endure long, if this Step be not taken. II. Because she ought in Justice to support the Pretensions of the House of Holstein, since so nearly allied to her Imperial Family, and their Interests corresponding so exactly with those of her Subjects. III. Because, notwithstanding what is said, she has a very great Affection for the Swedes, and is persuaded this Election only can, by stifling Factions, and restoring Things to their old Channel, free the Nation from the Influence of Foreign Counsels, and exalt it to its ancient Glory.' We strongly suspect, that the mighty Embarkation in Russia was concerted with a certain Party here, in order to over-balance any Assistance that might be expected from Denmark by the Friends of the Prince Royal; and, it is thought, this Expedient will have its Effects, the Burgesses and Peasants being extremely apprehensive of an Invasion.

Madrid, May 20. The Regiment of Burgos lately raised, and consisting of near 2000 Men, being in full March for Savoy, under the Command of Don Manuel Ponce, thought fit, when they arrived on the Frontiers, to march off to a Man, and have carried away with them their Colours. A Regiment of Horse has been sent after them, and has Orders to treat those they take as Deserters. Another new-raised Regiment also mutinied yesterday, in the same Manner, and for the same Cause. This Morning arrived from Cadiz an Express, with the News, that a Fire lately broke out there, and had reduced our Docks and Magazines to Ashes.

Rimini, May 25. We have this Morning a good deal of News. The last Express received by the Count de Gages from Spain, was not very agreeable. His Catholic Majesty disapproves entirely his Retreat from the Boulonois, after the Victory, as he calls it, of Campo Santo. He assures him, the Spanish Regiments from Naples shall join him; for that having written so often, and to so little Purpose, as a Father, on that Subject, he would now demand them of the King of the Two Sicilies as a Prince. The Duke of Modena no sooner took the Command, than he order'd a Review of the Army, which was found to consist of 13,758, exclusive of 2000 Graninians, Subjects of his Serene Highness, who are come to serve under him.

Chambery, May 27. The Spanish Army in our Neighbourhood has been reinforced by the Regiments of Lufitania and France, and the second Battalion of that of Savoy. They still expect 2000 Miquelets, two Regiments of Dragoons, and some other Troops, with a Supply of 2,000,000 of Pieces of Eight, before they open the Campaign; and, in the mean time, it is said, the Troops will be drawn out of Quarters, the Foot to encamp about St. John de Maurienne, and the Horse about this City. But as Orders have been issued this Morning for marching several Regiments back to France, we begin to suspect that they have concerted a new Plan of Operations, or are forced to suspend them entirely.

Hanover, June 7. The King has fix'd his Departure from hence to the Army for Monday the 17th Instant; and the Right Hon. the Lord Carteret proposes leaving this Place on Thursday next, or this Day Seven-night.

Liege, June 7. Yesterday 24 English Officers, and 200 Recruits, arrived upon this Frontier, in their Way to the Army commanded by the Earl of Stair; and they will be followed To-morrow by 200 Horse and Dragoons. A Detachment of M. de Noailles's Army surprized the Town of Wimpfou, a very strong Post in the Circle of Franconia, on the 26th past in the Morning, and placed a numerous Garison there.

Hoechst, June 7. The French, after having made a Detachment into Bavaria, of 12 Squadrons and 12 Battalions, have pass'd the Rhine, and now are encamped on this Side of it, with their Left towards that River, behind a Sort of Canal, which runs all along their Front. This Morning General Dupontpictin's Regiment, which makes the first Division of the Hanoverian Cavalry, arrived in the Camp, and the other Divisions will follow, Day after Day; the fourth had already pass'd the Rhine upon the 6th Instant.

Hague, June 11. They write from Utrecht, that his Majesty's Field Equipages departed from that Town the 8th, 9th, and 10th Instant, for the Army under the Earl of Stair; and that the Duke of Richmond was to follow them Yesterday, with several other Officers and Gentlemen belonging to his Majesty's Household. Marshal Broglie, after having abandoned Stadthoff the 1st of this Month, retired and pass'd the Danube near Weix; whereupon the Austrians enter'd the said Town of Stadthoff the Day following. Marshal de Noailles, upon Lord Stair's passing the Mayn, retired likewise, and is said to have sent a Succour of 15,000 Men to Marshal Broglie. Upon the Prince of Waldeck's Request to the States-General, their High Mightinesses have allowed him to serve in one of the Queen of Hungary's Armies in Germany, as General of Foot, pursuant to her Majesty's Desire; but upon Condition of his repairing hither upon the first Warning. The States of Holland, who separated on Saturday last, are to meet again To-morrow Seven-night, when they are to deliberate upon the State of their Finances.

Extract from the Paris Alaman.

Paris, June 10. 'Prince Charles of Lorraine has sent back to the Prince Conti his Berlin, his Equipage, and his Domesticicks; upon which the Prince of Conti bestow'd 100 Louis d'Ors on those who brought them. May the French be always liberal in this Way!

'When the Dauphin went through this City to Notre Dame, he caus'd 12,000 Livres to be thrown to the Mob.

'The Marshal de Maillebois is making a superb Equipage, but no body knows on what account.

'Private Letters say he is to command Auxiliaries in Savoy.

'The sending a Reinforcement from M. Noailles's Army to M. Broglie is confirmed, and the Regiments named of which it consists.

'Our Loss at Deckendorff was about 600, and that of the Austrians 2000.

'On the 6th arrived at Court a Courier from Bavaria, who is said to have brought Advice of the taking Braunau, and of something that has happened between the Troops of Count Saxe and those of Prince Lobkowitz.

'The News News from Germany has been of late so hot, that our Author has not known how to handle it.

'Admiral Matthews is returned, with the Fleet under his Command, to the Island of Hieres; what gives us a good deal of Inquietude, is, that we are informed he has received lately 10 or 12,000 Bombs, with whatever else is requisite for a Descent; which, in case of an English War, could not but gall us excessively, as we have not above 7000 regular Troops, three Battalions of Militia, and 10,000 Guards de Costes, to oppose them.

Perhaps not half so many.

'The same Letters say, that some English Vessels having chas'd two Spanish Ships in the Port of Toulon, they fired on them from the two nearest Forts, and damaged the Men of War very much. The Commandant is come hither on this Subject.'

Actions 2130.
